Pipeline contractor to help Little League fill canyon

by Lindy Wagner

In several years, if everything goes as planned, Lemon Grove Little Leaguers will be playing ball where some of their balls have landed - in Monterey Heights Canyon.

Due to a rather unique arrangement, the construction of a major San Diego County Water Authority pipeline will be the source of fill for the 7.1 acres of canyon property (adjacent to Monterey Heights Park) owned by the Lemon Grove Little League since 1966.

On a suggestion by city staffers, Little League President Mike Ott, a Lemon Grove fire captain, contacted J.F. Shea Construction Co., the contractor which will be installing the underground pipeline over the next 1 1/2 years. The construction company will be trucking 100,000 cubic yards of dirt to the canyon, at no charge, on a continual basis, as progress with the pipeline is made, as well as compacting the fill to grading permit standards.

"We met with the Little League and we are working with them, helping them meet the regulations of the permits as well as helping them with the fees," said Ed Marcus, project manager for J.F. Shea Co., who saw no problem in the arrangement.

"With this size of job, we are continually looking for places to put dirt," said Marcus, adding that the costs of trucking to the canyon site are "confidential."

According to City Manager Jack Shelver, the city will "fast track" the grading permit process, explaining that the most time-consuming item will be the preparation of the permit application which requires an engineering survey of the property.

"We're supportive of what the Little League is trying to do, and we will be helping them in anyway we can; including shortening the permit process for them to three days," added Shelver.

The Little League board has come up with $5,000 of the estimated $8,000 cost, and is asking the city to waive the permit fee entirely.

Once the fill is in place, Little League parents will be volunteering many hours to turn the acreage into ballfields complete with bleachers and fencing. Ott predicts that in a total of 2 1/2 years, the fields will be completed.

"It has been the dream of most of the Little League parents to have a field there," said Ott, who was a Little Leaguer himself at the time the canyon property was purchased.

"The ideal situation would be to have a Pop Warner regulation field, a football field, and a 300 to 325-foot baseball field for our senior division," explained Ott, adding that past president Larry Bradford had designed a master plan for such an arrangement of fields about six years ago.

However, before the new fields can become a reality, the Little Leaguers will be looking for more playing room - the three fields the League built in the late 1970s at Monterey Heights cannot service the current 500 players.

According to Ott, one of the additional fields now utilized - Knapp Field - is under consideration by a developer, and there is no guarantee that after another year, that field will be available, said Ott.

"We're looking for one on which our senior division could play until our fields are built," he added.

Recycling effort pays as City receives first check

At a special "Tonnage Grant Check Awards" ceremony held at the County Administration Center on Tuesday, Councilwoman Lois Heiserman represented Lemon Grove as the County distributed nearly $100,000 in "awards" to recognize the recycling efforts of each of the cities and four unincorporated areas.

Lemon Grove received $2,115.75 for diverting designated recyclables from county landfills totaling 546,000 pounds from July 1 to September 30, 1991 (the first quarter of the County's fiscal year).

The purpose of the program is to give cities and their residents incentive to recycle - and thus keep recyclables out of the County dumps.

In total, over 25 million pounds were diverted from the dumps and recycled. The award was calculated at $7.75 per ton.

Lemon Grove nearly doubled the amounts recycled by Coronado, Santee, National City, Del Mar and Imperial Beach.

While flooding in East County has not been as damaging as the floods in Los Angeles, trailers and other items were tossed about in the La Mesa Trailer Park by flash flooding in Alvarado Creek.

A tribute to the Smiths

by Dr. Robert Burns

Retirement is supposed to be a happy occasion, and speaking personally it certainly is, but it sometimes has a downside. In one case, it means that many of us must change doctors in mid or later life, and it is necessary, even if painful. Dr. Sam Smith has been a "point of light" in the community of Lemon Grove for as long as I can remember, and his recent retirement has affected not only us, his patients, but the many other lives he touched during his career.

Dr. Sam involved himself in our little town in so many ways aside from medical practice. He was first a "family doctor" in the old and treasured sense of the words. Most of his time was at an office right in the center of town on Main Street, in a building which is now our City Hall and Sheriff's Station. I recall so well our first meeting when young son, Dennis, was grazed by a Cadillac in front our house on Englewood Drive. The poor old gentleman who had hit the brakes was much worse off than Dennis, but Sam met us at the office to x-ray our little five-year-old. He also sutured a thumb back together on that same youngster.

Sam is a giving kind of person, and there was rarely a sporting event at Mt. Miguel that did not find Sam on the sidelines looking after the medical needs of the team. His beautiful wife, Gretchen, charmed us all along the way and took part in many civic affairs alongside her husband.

The Rotary Club boasted Sam as a real working member, and although our Kiwanis Club always bemoaned the fact that Rotary had gotten to him first, we had it almost as good. I believe that the Smiths never missed one of our pancake breakfasts, or apple sales, and were certainly better Kiwanians than some of our real members ever could be.

I recall the first day that Gretchen brought their puppy in to my veterinary office. It was a beagle, and of course, that struck a nostalgic cord with me. As a boy, my father was a rabbit hunter in his spare time, and since there is no better dog to bring rabbits around out of Michigan Cedar swamp than a beagle, that is what I grew up with. They are not the classiest or the snootiest breed, but there is none better to snuggle up with while lying out full length on the parlor floor, reading the funny papers.

Sam will continue doing some teaching at UCSD, and will have much more time with his music. A very accomplished clarinetist, he excels in Dixieland music, which is our favorite. Over the years he has often let Jackie and me know when and where he will be playing, so that we can "catch the act," so to speak. We certainly hope that he continues to do so. I am sure that he and Gretchen will be doing some traveling, and wish them both much happiness, even if he is not to be our doctor anymore. I cannot think too harshly of him, in that is exactly what I did just over a year ago.

Thanks, Sam and Gretchen for your years of service and devotion to the community we think is "best on earth," and, for everyone, we wish you both all the happiness that can be crammed into your many remaining years. Don't forget us, and rest assured that we will never forget you.

Ragland to paint at LGAA

Feb. 18, at 7:15 p.m., in the West room of the Lemon Grove Recreation Center, 3131 School Lane, Jack Ragland will give a painting demonstration.

This event is sponsored by the Lemon Grove Art Association. Non-members are welcome and refreshments will be served.

Ragland lives and has his studio in Fallbrook. He has exhibited his works in solo and group shows in galleries from New York to California, in Switzerland, Austria and France.

His artistic career has been followed in newspaper, books, magazines, television and national and international biographical directories. He is known for his use of bright colors and lively brush work.

At the next City Council meeting,
Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 7:30 p.m., Caltrans will present the latest variation of the design configuration for Highway 125

Grossmont-Cuyamaca alumni to honor Chief Soto

La Mesa Chief of Police Bob Soto will be recognized as the 1991 Distinguished Alumnus when the Grossmont-Cuyamaca Alumni Association holds its Annual Meeting on Feb. 21. Assemblywoman Carol Bentley will be the featured speaker, addressing the present state of community college activities in Sacramento.

Chief Soto graduated from Mar Vista High School in Imperial Beach, and attended San Diego City and Southwestern Colleges until he entered the Army in 1964. He holds degrees from Grossmont College, the FBI National Academy and National University. He exemplifies the criteria set by the association for distinction. Soto was hired as a police officer in 1969. He has moved through the ranks and was selected as Chief of Police by his peers in 1986.

The Alumni Association meeting begins at 5 p.m. with a buffet supper in the Griffin Gate Dining Room on the Grossmont College campus. For reservations and information, contact Barbara Payson at 465-1700, ext. 570.

Carol Brown, Lamplighter luminary dies

The Lamplighters, La Mesa's Community Theatre, lost one of its most beloved and influential members last week with the passing away of Carol Brown, the group's long-time treasurer.

A Lamplighter Board member since the late 1970s and its treasurer the past 12 years, Brown worked ceaselessly behind the scenes, most frequently as producer and recently as a director. Among her recent credits are direction of "Tender Lies" and two plays for children "The Cat in the Castle" and this past summer's "Invisible Ogre," which starred her daughter, actress Kelly Rae Hero.

A native of Chicago, Ill., Brown moved to the San Diego area in 1952 and became involved with Lamplighters in 1978. She was one of a small group of leaders who brought the theatre group to its current eminent position among community theatres. Brown has, for years, been a driving force in the production of more plays for young people and the current Lamplighter plans to produce a regular series of plays for children each summer is a tribute to her devotion to bringing live theatre to area youngsters.

In addition to her other duties,

Brown also managed the Lamplighters box office and was the cheerful and informative voice heard by so many when calling for ticket reservations of information. Prior to her retirement several years ago, Brown served as a legal procedures clerk for San Diego County.

In addition to her daughter Kelly Rae, Brown leaves two sons, James Brown and Devo Brown.

A memorial service will be held on Monday evening, Feb. 17, at 7 p.m. For information as to the location, call Arden Winokur at 589-2587.

Letter to the Editor

Re: Business License Tax

Dear Editor:

In the B-Words column of 12-12-91, Dr. Burns wrote of the new processing fee for business licenses in Lemon Grove. He said a study found that the actual cost to process a license was $37. It is hard to believe the computer generated renewal form and the computer printed license I receive each year is costing the city $37.

Lemon Grove has very low business license rates and a $30 raise is not unreasonable. However, to add this as a "processing fee" and claim that it is still lower than the actual cost does appear unreasonable. If, indeed, it costs the city $37 to process each license, then why is the City Council allowing the city to lose $7 on each license? Additionally, if the $37 cost is accurate, then it should be reduced—$37 is excessive to process some information and produce a couple of computer print-outs. A new license or one that needs changes would warrant a "processing fee," but a renewal is just printing, postage, and man-hours as far as I can figure.

It is possible that I don't know everything involved in business license issuing and renewing. Perhaps the Lemon Grove Review could publish this study and enlighten me and others affected by this fee?

Sincerely,
Laraine Mundt
Lemon Grove

The Review would be happy to publish the information requested. We invite Dr. Burns or City Manager Jack Shelver to explain to the business community just how they arrived at a $37 cost. Or maybe the City would like to contract it out to the Chamber of Commerce or a business in town so we could save the City a bunch of money!

The menu will include Caesar salad, chocolate Kahlua nut crunch cake, and your choice of Prime Rib or Macadamia Chicken. The cost is $22.00 per person. Your payment must accompany your reservations. You may drop it by the Chamber office Monday thru Friday between 9:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. or mail it (3443 Main St.). Be sure to indicate your choice of entree.

For those of you who wish to make a night of it, the Ramada Inn is giving us the special price of $42.00 per room which will sleep up to four. You will need to call Michele in catering to make those reservations.

This night promises to be an enjoyable one; plan to join in the festivities.

Membership Directory

The 1992 Membership Directory is due to be out the first part of May this year. If you wish to be included in the 1992 Directory your dues must be current by April 1, 1992. Only those billed April 1st will have until April 15th. As the production of this directory is time intensive the Board asks for your understanding (especially the April members).

This directory is what the Chamber staff uses for referrals. There are at least 20 inquiries a month by people looking for an item or service in our area. The Directory is sent to all members and some local officials. It is also for sale to the general public and often purchased by someone contemplating a business or personal move to the area.

Miss Lemon Grove

The Miss Lemon Grove Pageant will be held Saturday, March 7, 1992 at Lemon Grove Middle School Auditorium. It will begin at 7:00 p.m. Admission is $4.00 for adults and $2.00 for children under 12.

Thanks for the memories ...

Farewell to all! Many of you may already know about the changes taking place in the Chamber. Our new Steering Committee has been diligently working on ideas to broaden the Chamber's means to serve its members. I am very excited with their plans for 1992. These changes will take extra hours on the part of all committee members and staff to fulfill the goals. Loving the job to the extent that family and self take second and third place has affected my personal life. Therefore, I resigned on January 17, 1992.

My feelings for the Lemon Grove Chamber and community are warm and dear. Each and every one of you are part of my extended family and I will remember my time with the Chamber for the rest of my life. We both, the Chamber and I, have come a long way in the 3+ years I was the Exec. V.P., and now, with new blood, it will continue with fresh ideas.

Laraine Mundt was selected by the Exec. Board to fill the position until they could come up with a job description and get all the applications reviewed for the position. Laraine is an applicant, as well as several others. Laraine will need your help, and I am sure you will be as helpful to her as you have been to me in the past.

If you need to contact me, please call the Chamber and I will get the message.

My best wishes to all for a prosperous 1992. Stick together and make your Chamber an entity of strength. My husband, Al, and I will continue to be members of the Chamber and we hope we will see you at the monthly events. If you haven't gotten involved with the Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce, please call the office today and get more information on your community.

Love,
Joyce A. Lazok

Surplus Computer Donation Sought

Computer, Computer. Who's got the computer?
The Board of Directors is actively looking for a computer for the Chamber office. If you can donate one, we would be very grateful. This could be a nice tax deduction for you and a positive step toward a more efficient office for the Chamber.

January Sundowner

The January Sundowner was held at Lemon Grove Vision Care Center. They are celebrating their 40th year. All in attendance enjoyed the good food by Top Hat Catering and the special anniversary cake. The Fishbowl was won by Jan Davis who was very glad there were so many members and friends present.

Thanks Lemon Grove Vision Care! Here's wishing you another 40 years of success in Lemon Grove.

February Sundowner

The February Sundowner will be on Thursday, February 26, 1992 at the Lemon Grove Arts Complex, 8075 Broadway. Our hosts will be Gary Ulrici of Lewis Engraving and Cookie Ringhand of Realty World-Pro Consultants. The festivities will begin at 5:30. Bring a dollar, a business card for the Fishbowl, and a friend to enjoy the evening.

If you would like to host a Sundowner, we still have a few openings (May 27, July 22 and September 23). Call the office (469-9621) and get on our list. The list will be printed in the newsletter as soon as it is complete.

Luncheon Speakers

We need speakers for our luncheons!! If you know of someone who has something interesting or informative which they would like to share with us at one of our luncheons, please contact the Chamber office with your suggestions. You know the number, 469-9621.

Chamber Ad Page

The Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce ad page in the Lemon Grove Review is doing really well. We have gotten many favorable calls from advertisers and residents about the ad page. There are only a few spots available for March, so if you are interested please contact the Chamber office and we will get you in.

Lemon Grove Old Time Days

Lemon Grove Old Time Days will be here Friday and Saturday, May 8-9. The planning committee has been hard at work organizing the event. Susan Peters, Channel 8 news anchorwoman, will be the Parade Grand Marshal this year. Dr. James Justeson, retiring superintendant of the Lemon Grove School District, will be the honorary Grand Marshal.

John Pipes, President of the Lemon Grove Old Time Days Association, the non-profit organization that presents the long-running two-day celebration, is asking for help from Chamber members and any other interested parties. Volunteers are needed throughout the year to help with the planning, but the greatest need for people is on the day of the parade. If you or your group can help, please call John right away at 466-6229.

Non-profit groups interested in renting space for a booth during the Old Time Days Faire should contact Nancy McCadam, 668-4575, as soon as possible to reserve space. Crafters interested in selling their creations, call Laraine Mundt at 462-9720. There is a limited number of booth spaces available, so act now, or you may be left out!

This year, a raffle will be held to help offset the rising expenses of producing Old Time Days. Jan Davis, publicity chairman and coordinator of the raffle, hopes to have about 100 items to us as prizes. If you can donate an item or service worth at least $10, please call Jan at 670-2606. Examples are gift certificates for haircuts, restaurant meals, an item from you retail business or tickets to a local event. Your donation will be acknowledged on a printed list which will be distributed, and also on a sign displayed prominently during the Faire. All donations will be tax deductible.

Also this year, for the first time, memberships can be purchased in the Lemon Grove Old Time Days Association.

Businesses and individuals wishing to sponsor Lemon Grove's major event will receive a certificate which can be displayed in their business showing their support. Call John Pipes at 462-

SCORE Marketing Seminar

On March 7, 1992 SCORE will present an all-day seminar titled "Power Marketing for More Sales and Bigger Profits."

Learn: How to leverage any small business with minimal cost; Eight keys to immediate profitability; Five Ways to test before you invest; and how to avoid the biggest single mistake in marketing. San Diego Concourse, 2nd Avenue at C Street, $25 at the door; $20 if preregistered by February 21st Call 221-5666 for further details.

Friendship Force planning trip to Ireland

Friendship Force of San Diego, a foreign visitor's exchange program, will meet Sunday, Feb. 16, 1:15 p.m. to 3:30 p.m., at the North Clairemont Senior Friendship Center, 4425 Bannock Ave., San Diego. Social hour will be from 1:15 p.m. to 2:00 p.m., followed by a business meeting and program which will feature a discussion of the club's plans for foreign lands which will be involved in visitor exchange programs during 1992.

A group of Friendship Force members from San Diego will travel to Dublin in May when they will meet again with their Irish counterparts whom they hosted last November during a two-week visit to San Diego and Los Angeles.

Anyone interested in joining the group for the Ireland trip may learn more about the organization and details of the trip at the Feb. 16 meeting.

Guests are welcome to attend the meeting. Admission is free.

Last November some 14 host families welcomed 21 Friendship Force visitors from Ireland into their homes for a week's visit to the San Diego area. Their hosts showed them the many points of interest in the San Diego area, including Sea World, Wild Animal Park, Tijuana, Old Town, and major shopping centers.

The Friendship Force is a private non-profit international organization, founded in 1977, with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga. Chapters are established in 151 cities in 42 countries on five continents. Its membership consists of some 275,000 hosts who open their homes to foreign visits from Friendship Force chapters throughout the world.

The Friendship Force of San Diego boasts a membership of more than 80 members throughout San Diego County, including a small contingent from La Mesa.

Any area resident may join Friendship Force. Membership offers an opportunity to visit foreign lands, staying in homes of Friendship Force hosts, and the experience of hosting Friendship Ambassadors from other countries.

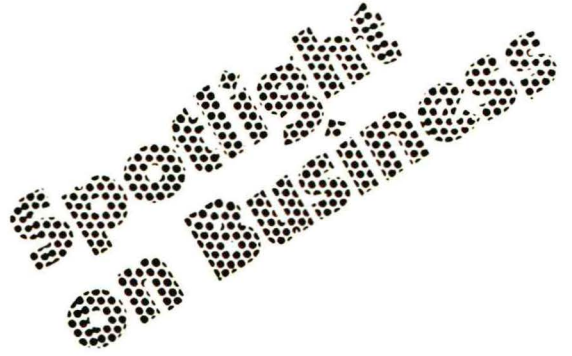

Friendship Force of San Diego holds meetings four times a year. For information, call Jim McIlraith at 452-7026 (La Jolla), Elsie Brink at 421-1678 (South Bay), Peggy Benninghoven at 561-9659 or Betty Harms at 466-0714 (East County), Robert Spellman at 942-9193 (Encinitas), Jeanne Johnson at 747-4536 (Escondido) or Ruth Miller at 576-1530 (San Diego).

Commentary

by Paul Treske

Within a 48-hour period last week, I saw two faces that overwhelmingly represented good and evil. In the morning, at the annual La Mesa prayer breakfast I saw and heard Irene Opdyke, a Holocaust rescuer who risked her life for years during the Nazi occupation of Poland to hide and protect a group of Jews being sought by the Germans. The next evening, I watched on television the face of racist and hater Tom Metzger spewing his loathing of all unlike him and threatening the very core of America with his venom.

The morning was spent listening to the incredibly brave and lovely lady speak of courage, faith, determination and love of mankind as an emotionally uplifting experience as I have ever had.

In the evening, as I watched Metzger smirk and sneer as he tried to defend himself against charges that his teachings had directly led to the murder of an innocent man in Portland, Oregon, I felt as though I was struggling to free myself from the slime of a sewer or garbage pit.

As I have aged, I have come to believe that evil is a living, palpable thing that furtively steals among us. It seeks out the weak, the fearful, the angry and the rootless among us, and sometimes gives their lives purpose through hating. When these fearful and weak become strong and vengeful, the havoc they wreak in the name of that which they believe is "right and true" can be devastating as in Nazi Germany. When this happens, inevitably most either support the evil or fearfully turn away, saying, "It's none of my business." Only a few have the courage to say, "No, this is wrong, this is evil and I must do something to combat it." Such a person, is Irene Opdyke, who, seeing innocent men, women and children tormented - herded like animals and finally executed - decided that it was up to each one of us to choose between good and evil. She decided then to help those who were being persecuted even if her own life was at risk.

As the television account of Metzger's trial closed last week, Metzger, found guilty, told the TV audience that his loss made no difference; that he had already won; that the seeds of his White Aryan Army's hatred were already planted in the high schools and colleges of America; that they would someday grow into a mighty force that would rid America of its minorities - its black, its Hispanics, its Jews - and turn the nation into the kind of Aryan society that Hitler, himself, had envisioned. As the camera closed in on his face with its perpetual smirk and cold lifeless eyes, I believe that I once again saw the visage of pure evil, a visage that was chilling to the bone.

Irene Opdyke was snatched from a happy teenage life and thrust into an unspeakable cauldron of brutality within which she had the courage and selflessness to actively fight what she saw as evil. Those of us blessed by being born and living in this free country have seldom, if ever, had to make such a decision. But make no mistake, those seeds that Tom Metzger speaks of are planted, and, given the right climate and environment, they could grow.

The future may well hold times when each of us will be forced to choose between the "good" of love, understanding and tolerance and the "evil" of bigotry, hatred and racism. I, for one, will remember the incredible courage of a tiny woman named Opdyke, and perhaps, that will lead me to work harder on the side of good.

The mall of presidents

by Joseph Walker

I was walking through the mall last President's Day, minding my own business, when I noticed two guys sitting on a bench. Really close - like they were joined at the hip or something. One wore a beard, a smile and a very tall hat. The other had this funky, white hair bound up in a very chic ponytail, and a smile that, for some strange reason, reminded me for all the world of a white picket fence.

At first, I figured they were in a rock group or something. Then I got a closer look. These faces didn't belong to punkers. They were faces I know and love, if only because they decorate my wallet on those rare occasions when I actually have cash in it.

Honest - Abe, By George.

Since the closest I'd ever been to a president was shaking the hand of a tour guide who shook Jimmy Carter's hand, I couldn't pass on the chance to chat with two of the biggies. Following is a transcript of our conversation:

Joe: Excuse me, but what are you two guys doing here?

George: Hey, everybody likes to hang out at the mall on President's Day.

Joe: You mean you've been shopping here all day?

Abe: All day. All four score and seven stores, too.

Joe: And have you two always been so ... well, close?

Abe: Well, it's been like this ever since Congress decided to celebrate our birthdays together. It's like we're becoming one president - Washington Lincoln.

George: Lincoln Washington.

Abe: Whatever. We're kind of blending into each other. Next thing you know, you'll be hearing about how I was The Great Cherry Tree Splitter.

George: And how I threw a silver dollar across the battlefield at Gettysburg.

Joe: So, now that you're here, what do you think?

George: I think it's hard to eat carmel corn with wooden teeth.

Joe: No, I mean about America; has the country turned out like you hoped?

Abe: Pretty much. I was concerned when I heard that there is still a big market for trading and purchasing human beings - until someone explained pro sports to me.

George: And I'm amazed - and a little embarrassed - by some of the things people think we had in mind when we wrote the First Amendment to the Constitution.

Joe: But what are some of the good things you've seen here?

George: Protestors. I see them all around, complaining about this and that. Sure, they're noisy, and sometimes they even say mean things about the president. But I'm pleased that this is still a country where people can speak their piece without having to worry about being locked up or forced to drink bad tea.

Abe: And I'm happy to see how much unity exists in a country that allows for such protest, not to mention all that other stuff that tends to separate people from each other - things like race, religion and whether or not "you've got the right one, baby."

Joe: Uh-huh. So what would you take back to the past with you if you could?

George: Well, a few of those Patriot missiles would probably come in handy.

Abe: And schools; I think we could avoid a lot of problems if our children had the same kind of education your children have.

Joe: And is there anything from the past that you think we could use today?

Abe: Morality. Folks today seem to think right and wrong are relative, and that the only real value is "what's in it for me?" That'll catch up to 'em if they aren't careful.

George: Commitment. So many people here are just sort of floating along. I'd like to see what they can accomplish if they put their minds to something significant.

With that, George and Abe started to fade like the picture on an old dollar bill. They were just about gone, when I remembered something I had been meaning to ask.

"Mr. Lincoln," I called, "do you remember saying that 'the world will little note, nor long remember what we say'?"

"Yes," he said, his voice echoing in the mist. "That was at Gettysburg."

"Well, you need to know that we haven't forgotten either one of you," I assured them. "And, we never will."

Even if they do have to share a holiday.

From Where I Sit

A hideaway for R & R

by Frank Andrews

We had found the perfect retreat from the maddening world of the big city and our hectic contracting business. This secluded rendezvous was located about 100 miles north of the Minnesota-Ontario border over 2,600 long miles from our home in Southern California.

My beloved and hard-working wife, Willie Marie, the kids, and I would work all fall, winter, and spring at our contracting business so we could take the summer off and go to Canada. We needed the diversion from our stressful business. Though, it was mostly more work for all of us on our new cabin in the pines instead of fishing, swimming, and enjoying all of the amenities of that beautiful spot.

I can remember the year that we finally finished our "love nest by the lake" and looked forward to peace and quiet entwined with some fishing and water sports. That was the stellar year of years. Our friends and relatives must have gotten wind that our work was done and it was "all clear" for their visiting. We had a couple parties of friends seek us out from faraway San Diego. How did they know how to find us way up in the Canadian wilderness? One day upon our return from town we were startled to find a camper parked in our yard. There before us were Bob and Mildred; Bob splitting our firewood, and Mildred washing our lakeside windows. They were good friends from our La Mesa church.

I volunteered to take Bob and Mildred fishing as they had an "Izaak Walton" reputation. We started fishing by floating down the Rice Lake Creek where I learned from this couple many no-no's of safe boating. Bob and Mildred were continually walking back and forth in my little 14-foot aluminum car-top boat. I was too nervous to fish.

Being so far north means that the sun doesn't set until 10 or 11 p.m., and we fished until last light. When we arrived back at the cabin that late, we were expecting a feast - usually fish that we had recently caught. It was then my job to fillet the pike and get them to the head cook, Willie Marie.

This routine of my guiding, fish cleaning, and Willie Marie's cooking at late hours went on with every party that visited that summer. Willie said with a very weary attitude, "We could just as well be operating a fishing camp and get paid for all our work. I'm tired of this routine; dinner will be served at straight-up 6 p.m., or no eats."

We had friends leaving and another load coming in. What kind of "rest and relaxation" was this? We were getting more company than we did back in San Diego. "Work in the p.m., fish in the a.m.," was the new code for the Andrews' cabin. Willie's sister and brother-in-law came with their new Airstream trailer for a couple weeks of "fun on the lake." They liked our spot so well that we built a pad for their trailer with water, electric, and sewer hook-ups. They came all the way from Oklahoma each summer for a two-week visit.

After we implemented the new "code of the woods," life became more like we had planned. We didn't lose any friends or fishing buddies on account of our new rules; we just became a happier campers.

It's the Law

by Mark E. Zatt, Attorney at Law

Question: What are the requirements for a valid will in California?

Answer: California law generally recognizes two types of valid wills: the witnessed will and the holographic will. While each type of will has its own requirements for validity, several such requirements are common to both types of wills.

A witnessed will is a will which is signed by the person making the will (the "testator"), and which is also signed by two competent witnesses who each observe the testator's and the other witness's signing of the will. A witnessed will is typically drafted by an attorney, and the attorney usually supervises the will's signing to ensure that all legal formalities of the signing are observed.

To assist persons with very simple estate planning needs, California has established two types of statutory "fill-in-the-blank" witnessed will forms, which are typically executed without an attorney's assistance. One will form disposes of assets outright and the other form establishes a trust for the benefit of minor children. While these statutory will forms are convenient, they should not be used if the testator needs professional estate planning advice (particularly regarding estate taxes) or if the testator's desired asset disposition is not reflected in the forms.

A holographic will is a will signed by the testator and whose material provisions are in the testator's handwriting. A holographic will need not be witnessed, but it must be clear from the writing that the document is intended to be the testator's will. These wills are sometimes made by persons facing an immediate threat of death who did not previously formalize their estate planning matters.

Both witnessed and holographic wills must meet additional requirements which ensure that the will truly reflects the testator's intentions. Specifically, the will's testator must be a mentally competent adult who is not acting under fraud, menace, duress, or undue influence in establishing the will. If a will's validity is later contested on any of these grounds, the testimony of witnesses is often needed to determine whether or not such factors were present when the will was signed. Accordingly, a properly established witnessed will is more like to survive a challenge to its validity than a holographic will.
